

"PAAP Season" Chapter in Complex Web of Inequality Book

Briana Hinga <hinga@rossier.usc.edu>

Friday, October 21, 2016 at 6:22 PM

To: Maria Timberlake

📎 : congratulationsemailtoauthors.attachment.10.21.docx (22.4 KB)

Preview

→ You forwarded this message on 10/21/16, 7:35 PM.

→ You forwarded this message on 10/22/16, 8:26 AM.

Action Items

Manage Add-ins...

Hi Dr. Timberlake,

We appreciate your chapter submission "'PAAP Season": A case study in good intentions and unintended consequences for students with significant cognitive." We received so many powerful chapter submissions, and we have decided to compile two books (i.e., an additional book from the original book for which you submitted this chapter). We would be grateful to include your chapter in the book tentatively titled: "The Complex Web of Inequality: How educational policies further push minoritized youth to the margin." Gil Conchas and I will still be editors of this book. In addition, Kris D. Gutiérrez will co-edit this book with us.

The purpose of the manuscript is to critically interrogate educational policies that marginalize the most marginalized populations within the US school system. Through this investigation we aim to shed light on the complex web of historically embedded inequities that shape the construction, roll-out, and consequences of education policy for already minoritized populations. The contract for this book was approved this week. The completion date for this book will be November 2017. Additional informational about each chapter is attached in this email.

Will you please reply to me, to let me know if you are interested in including your chapter or have any questions.

Thanks very much!

Briana Hinga, PhD
Assistant Professor of Clinical Education
Rossier School of Education
University of Southern California
Waite Phillips Hall 1001A