Heller School for Social Policy and Management

Jan 2010 – Dec 2012

Brandeis University
Waltham, Massachusetts

Research Assistant

Conducted quantitative and qualitative analysis for an evaluation of a Massachusetts state project providing participant-directed services to low income children with autism and their families. Created interview protocols to explore family and professionals' perceptions of choice and participant direction, conducted interviews with families and providers, facilitated focus groups, developed a standardized measure of child progress from early childhood providers' narrative reports and summarized findings into reports for state personnel and academic journals.

Center for Community Inclusion & Disability Studies

July 1994 – July 2008

Maine's University Center for Excellence in
Developmental Disabilities Education, Research, and Service (UCEDD)
Orono, Maine

Research Associate in Inclusive Education

Designed professional development, provided technical assistance and facilitated administrative planning in general and special education, universal design and school reform. Conducted workshops for early childhood providers, K-12 educators and administrators, and post-secondary audiences in inclusive practices. Sample topics included: creating access to state and local standards for students with disabilities, positive behavior supports, classroom climate and community building, strategies for teaching heterogeneous groups of learners, the classroom application of neurological and psychological research, and supporting and supervising paraprofessionals. Consulted on individual students with complex or low-incidence disabilities by reviewing data, conducting classroom observations and writing educational recommendations; collaborated with Maine Department of Education to include students with disabilities in education reform efforts including Maine's Comprehensive Assessment System and other state policy initiatives.

College of Education

June 1997 – July 2008

University of Maine
Orono, Maine

Adjunct Instructor

Taught two graduate courses for students working on a Masters degree in Special Education:

SED 572 Educational Needs of Students with Medical/Physical Disabilities. This course examined the complex educational issues related to students with healthcare concerns and/or low incidence disabilities. Topics included legal precedents, the sensorimotor system, considerations for positioning, feeding and self-care; neurological functioning, creating classroom accommodations for sensory impairments, and translating medical reports in to classroom practice.

SED 509 Curriculum Methods for Students with Severe Disabilities. This courses focused on designing access to the general education curriculum, aligning instruction with state and local standards, supporting students in general education classrooms, utilizing systematic instruction methods, creating accommodations and modifications, and the participation of students with disabilities in state and local assessment systems.

Kennebec Valley Community College
Department of Humanities and Social Sciences
Fairfield, Maine
Adjunct Instructor

January 2004 – June 2005

Designed and taught an introductory course for paraprofessionals in general and special education: EDU 102 Strategies for Teaching Students with Disabilities; supported adult learners who were going back to school after an extended time away.

Private Practice
Consultant

1992 –1994; 2011-13

Evaluated students considered to have low-incidence disabilities, created informal assessment activities and produced recommendations for academic and social participation. In 2011 I evaluated the first year implementation of a federal grant project to enroll seasonal and migrant farmworkers into GED and post secondary education and employment in Maine, interviewed project staff, partner agency representatives, and students enrolled in the program; reviewed student personal learning plans and provided recommendation to the project director.

School administrative District #49,
Clinton Elementary School
Clinton, Maine
Special Education Teacher/Inclusion Facilitator

September 1991 – June 1994

Adapted regular classroom work and routines to allow successful participation of children with high and low incidence disabilities. Co-taught language arts with general education teachers, conducted assessments, wrote IEPs, integrated therapy objectives into classroom activities, supervised and trained paraprofessionals, and provided individual and small group direct instruction for students with and without disabilities.

Lawrence High School
Fairfield, Maine
Integration Consultant

September 1989 – May 1990

A one-year position to train staff and prepare district schools for the return of 12 students with multiple disabilities from a specialized nursing home facility. Worked with educators and community members to frame the initiative as a positive and important civil rights advance to dispel the anxiety and resistance some were experiencing. Compiled resources on inclusive education, designed and presented training for gr. 7-12 staff.

Knowlton Elementary School
Ellsworth, Maine
Teacher

September 1986 – June 1989

Taught a self-contained classroom for students with disabilities. Created a preschool transition process, parent support system, and wrote & received two Department of Education innovative education grants.
